

Review By Sandra Henson 17th June 2016

THE SEVEN STREETS OF LIVERPOOL

by Maureen Lee

The author born in Bootle, now lives in Colchester. She has written many novels, most of which cover the Second world war and post-war years in Liverpool.

The "Seven Streets of Liverpool", many years ago, were the first important streets of the city.

This novel revolves mainly around Pearl Street, with many names and characters, a little confusing at times. With no particular hero, Eileen Stephens is a popular character throughout, with families and their loves, secrets, tragedies and successes. Easy reading, portraying the effects war has on people and towns.

5 out of 7 members were happy to read this book, some hoping to read more of her novels.